Independence Day, 1st August 1939, a great day of freedom and the birth of new states. A state is known as union of states. The Union being a politically united country, its citizens are not subjected to any particular language or region for it is a multi-ethnic one. The majority of them speak Hindi as their common language. There are a number of other languages, besides Hindi, for example, Urdu, Marathi, Bengali, Rajasthan. The Indian culture is based on Indian traditions and a blend of all these things is the Indian culture. Despite the vast differences in languages, religions, and cultures, the Indians of today are still the same and retain their deep rooted culture, respect for old traditions and respect for the law of the land. Their minds are broad and well-developed, keen on education and keen on acquiring knowledge. The national capital, New Delhi, is not far from any of the state capitals, the commercial capital of Mumbai is almost equal to that of London. The main economic centres of the states are

Mumbai, Delhi, Bangalore, Kolkata and Hyderabad. The country has the most effective policy of reservation in government jobs and educational institutions. Being a country of landlocked plateau, land is not plentiful and the citizens are scattered in different parts of the country. Being a large and rich country, it is more prone to natural calamities such as floods, droughts, earthquakes etc. The climate is pleasant and mild. The country's flora is varied and beautiful. The soil is fertile. Vegetables, fruits, grains, spices, honey and coffee are some of the important agricultural products. The country is rich in minerals such as coal, iron, tin, lead, sulphur, copper and bauxite. Rice, millet and wheat are the main crops. For animal husbandry, the country has buffaloes, oxen, cows, sheep, goats, horses, pigs, poultry, poultry and fisheries. India is a tolerant country, a liberal one. It is a great producer of art, literature, sculpture, music and dance. India has a national daily newspaper, the Indian Express, a Sunday paper, Hindustan Times, and a number of daily newspapers in the languages of the various Indian states. The most important of them are The Times of India and The Economic Times. There are many institutes and universities, many of them world class and this has helped India to produce brilliant professionals who are most sought after. The university 82157476af
